Prior to moving to Singapore, he worked as a tax adviser in Jakarta and in Hong Kong, where he concentrated on Indonesian and Chinese as well as Hong Kong tax matters. Working from the Loyens & Loeff office in Singapore since 1996, his work focuses on European and Asian tax planning, and includes corporate tax, indirect tax and transfer pricing matters, and covers a wide variety of business sectors. Pieter has written a number of publications on Asian taxation and is a frequent speaker at conferences on Asian tax matters.

Pieter will discuss the main taxes relevant to foreign investors when investing in Indonesia, including the income tax, withholding taxes and VAT. Importantly, per 1 January 2009 a new income tax law will take effect, including provisions dealing with beneficial ownership and anti-avoidance, which, on the face of it, will have a significant impact on international tax structure for investments in or out of Indonesia.
