Graeme Reid is an Executive Director. He recently re-joined KPMG from another major firm in London where he was responsible for developing key client relationships in the quoted mid-tier market and with private equity houses. Graeme previously worked for 20 years with KPMG in London, Sydney and New York. As a partner in London, he was Head of ICE Tax and responsible for a wide range of clients in the technology, media and leisure sectors. In 2000 he set up and led the UK Tax Centre of Excellence in New York. His areas of expertise include intellectual property planning, financing strategies, group reorganisations and planning for tax effective acquisitions and disposals.

Niels Boef is an international tax lawyer. He joined the international tax business unit of KPMG Meijburg & Co in Amsterdam late 2001 and was appointed senior tax manager in early 2007. Niels renders tax advisory services to some of the largest European, Asian and US multinationals. Niels joined KPMG's ASPAC Regional Tax Office in Singapore in January 2008. Niels advises on tax opportunities for Asia Pacific businesses investing into Europe and vice versa. He regularly speaks and publishes on international tax topics. Niels is a member of IFA Netherlands branch, where he takes part in Young IFA Network (YIN) initiatives.

Dominic Gormley is a tax senior manager, in KPMG Singapore's International Corporate Tax group. He has worked for 13 years with KPMG in London, New York and Portugal and has extensive experience delivering cross border tax advisory engagements for a broad range of clients. His areas of expertise include advising on the tax issues arising in the area of international shipping and airline transportation.
